

NTSB Lab measure of carb throttle arm.

The following shows three measurements of the angle of the throttle arm versus what is believed to be vertical

Using three different photos trying to keep them centered and perpendicular to the throttle shaft axis.

In all three the measurements were roughly 17 degrees as indicated in the Sikorski rigging drawing.

