Subject: Custody of Batteries Found in USAir Flight 427 Wreckage

A small package of batteries was reportedly found with debris from USAir flight 427. The package is contained in a rubber or plastic sheath and is about the size found in rechargeable flashlights. The individual batteries were labelled as Rayovac alkaline. After examination and photographing of the object in the Safety Board laboratory, the package was turned over to Mr. Calvin Walbert of the Federal Aviation Administration, as of this date at 2:30 pm.
