Hi

FYI

I talked to the pilot (Anthony Remboldt) for the KingAir " Foothills 122" , that did the missed approach before the Hawker (at Telluride). He had talked (via Unicom) to the gal at the FBO, and she said the weather was not looking good. So he had pretty much decided on a missed approach, before getting to the airport. He felt that he had the weather to do an approach, but decided to do the missed before he got to the runway. So he didn't even get an opportunity to see the airport or any snow removal operations, etc.
