Participatory budgeting (PB) is a process by which citizens, through a series of public meetings and surveys, decide on the priorities for the local government's budget. PB is a form of direct democracy that allows citizens to have a say in the decisions that affect their community. PB is a process that is used in many cities around the world, and it has been shown to have a number of benefits, including increased citizen participation in government, improved transparency, and more effective use of public funds.
