He was in bed after work, heard a big boom and felt the ship shake. He heard a man crying and wouldn't stop. He left his cabin and saw a man with a towel around his waist, with a burned back and what appeared to be skin coming off of (what he indicated was) his right arm. The crew came and took him away.

He heard the 7 short 1 long blast, he understood this to mean proceed to emergency stations. He remained in the passageway near his cabin, with about 25 to 30 other crewmembers.
