

Photo 8. Backscatter electron image of the tierod hole surface. The red arrows identify patches of high intensity electron return. The yellow arrows identify the directional marring. White arrows outline the changed surface morphology near the cracks.