

[REDACTED]

---

My written statement of incident

Departed Fort Lauderdale executive airport Sunday morning destination Morristown TN. Everything was completely normal. But as we were climbing through flight level 200 I heard a very large bang as I looked up the pilots windshield was completely smashed and glass was coming into the cockpit. We were also decompressing at a rate of about 4000 feet per minute. I contacted the ATC told them of our problem and requested a clearance and a lower altitude back to Fort Lauderdale executive airport. Where we landed without incident. No one was injured and I do not know why the window broke.

[REDACTED] 03/27/2019