

A photograph of a biological specimen, possibly a plant or animal part, mounted on a light-colored, textured surface. The specimen is dark, elongated, and appears to be a stem or branch with some internal structure visible. To the left of the specimen is a dark green rectangular label with the number '351' written in white. The background surface has several circular holes, suggesting it might be a piece of paper or a thin board. The overall lighting is somewhat dim, and the colors are muted.
