RE: ERA19LA253

Mr. Cabiroy was very concerned about why it took so long for first responders to find him and his wife. He knew the AFRCC was aware of the accident since they called his cell phone after the accident. However, since he was unable to reach his cell phone from the accident impact, he assumed that the AFRCC would contact his daughter, who was listed as an emergency contact on his ELT registration form. His daughter was aware that her parents were flying to Sebastian that morning, and when she did not hear back from her parents, she began making phone calls to locate the airplane. The AFRCC never called her.
